Vanilla Landscapes: Meaning, Memory, and the Cultivation of Place in Madagascar
Sarah R. Osterhoudt

Valued in the world market as a luxury good, the vanilla bean from Madagascar is originally from Mesoamerica. In choosing to cultivate vanilla, the local farmers respond to basic requirements of maintaining agroforestry fields such as hand-pollinating each vanilla flower. By way of process, farmers infuse their landscapes with political histories, personal memories, and moral ideas.

BIOGRAPHY

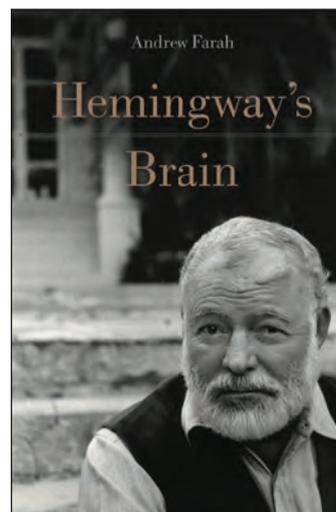

A Mother's Tale
Phillip Lopate

A mother and a son try to make peace through the vehicle of her telling him her life story. In the process, he attempts to see her as an intrepid Mother Courage, but her tendency toward victimhood and grudge-holding keeps getting in the way; there are epiphanies of understanding and regressions on both sides.

Proust and His Banker: In Search of Time Squandered
Gian Balsamo

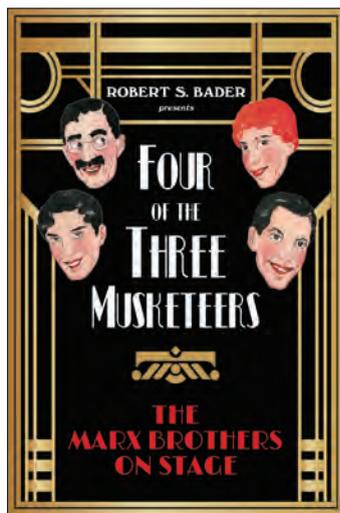

Marcel Proust often smothered objects of his affection with gifts, an extravagance paid for by daring stock exchange speculations. His cousin and financial adviser, Lionel Hauser, was to make sure these speculations would not go sour. Gian Balsamo reveals that Proust was aware of the advantageous trade-off between financial indulgence and artistic inspiration—providing the grist for fictional characters and incidents of surprising effectiveness, in both the artistic and commercial sphere. GENERAL SCIENCES

Communicating Science Effectively: A Research Agenda

Committee on the Science of Science Communication: A Research Agenda; National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine

Science and technology are embedded in virtually every aspect of modern life. As a result, people face an increasing need to integrate information from science with their personal values and other considerations as they make important life decisions. Communicating Science Effectively offers a research agenda for science communicators and researchers seeking to apply this research and fill gaps in knowledge about how to communicate effectively about science. This book identifies important influences – psychological, economic, political, social, cultural, and media-related – on how science related to such issues is understood, perceived, and used.

Land!: The Case for an Agrarian Economy

John Crowe Ransom; Edited by Jason Peters; Introduction by Jay T. Collier

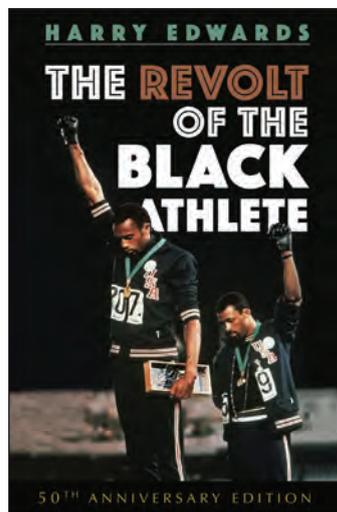

"For students of American literature, for contemporary Agrarians, for historians of American ideas, and for all those who believe that a 'third way economics' deserves new attention in our raucous social-economic times, this is equivalent to a musicologist's discovery of a long-lost symphony by Mozart or Brahms. John Crowe Ransom's 1932 essay Land! is insightful American history, at once splendidly old and remarkably fresh." —Allan C. Carlson, author of The New Agrarian Mind Pub. 03/17. PHILOSOPHY

The Vision of the Soul: Truth, Goodness, and Beauty in the Western Tradition

James Matthew Wilson

In The Vision of the Soul, James Matthew Wilson seeks to conserve the great insights of the western tradition by giving us a new account of them responsive to modern discontents. The Western—or Christian Platonist—tradition, Wilson argues, tells us that man is an intellectual animal, born to pursue the good, to know the true, and to contemplate all things in beauty. By turns a study in fundamental ontology, aesthetics, and political philosophy, The Vision of the Soul invites its readers to a renewal of the West's intellectual tradition.

RELIGION

The Church in Iraq
Fernando Cardinal Filoni
Translated by Edward Condon

The persecution of the church in Iraq is one of the great tragedies of the twenty-first century. In this short, yet sweeping account, Fernando Cardinal Filoni, the former Papal Nuncio to Iraq, shows us the people and the faith in the land of Abraham and Babylon, a region that has been home to Persians, Parthians, Byzantines, Mongols, Ottomans, and more. This is the compelling and rich history of the Christian communities in a land that was once the frontier between Rome and Persia, for centuries the crossroads of East and West for armies of invaders and merchants, and the cradle of all human civilization. The Church in Iraq is a personal and engaging history of the relationship between Rome and the Eastern Churches.

Women against Abortion: Inside the Largest Moral Reform Movement of the Twentieth Century

Karissa Haugeberg

Women from diverse religious, social, and political backgrounds made up the rank-and-file of anti-abortion activism. Karissa Haugeberg explores the ways these activists fused religious conviction with partisan politics, their rationalizations for lethal violence, and how women claimed space within an unshakably patriarchal movement.
