of New School signage signal the basis for future research.
found to date. It established a new transmission of the only pre-archaeological context and history 33 inclusive and open place. In con-signage both mark and produce an unique features of the Old School as Brooklyn, New York. The creation of the place known storefronts is a key component to argues that the public language of impact they have on people is notice them, storefronts and their
Although we may not think we
Shonna Trinch and Edward Snajdr
Place-making in Brooklyn Language, Gentrification, and
What the Signs Say

The Chinese University of Hong Kong Press
Pub Dec 2019. 7.5 x 10.0 in. 252 pp.

Lothar von Falkenhausen
Li Ling; translated and edited by Discovery and Transmission
Volume 1:
(Hunan Province)
from Zidanku, Changsha
The Chu Silk Manuscripts

This first volume presents the archaeological content and history of transmission of the only pre-Imperial Chinese Silk Manuscripts found to date. It established a new basis for future research.

Pub Dec 2019. 7.5 x 10 in. 252 pp.
The Chinese University of Hong Kong Press
978-988-237-097-5 C/$100

Feed My Sheep
The Life of Alberta Henry
Colleen Whitley

An exceptional first-person account of the struggles and triumphs of a prominent African-American leader and her role in the civil rights movement in Utah.

University of Utah Press
978-1-607-81693-5 C/$34.95

City Schools and the American Dream 2
The Enduring Promise of Public Education
Pedro A. Noguera and Esa Syeed

“City Schools 2 makes clear why the myth of silver bullet education reforms has failed our children and our communities”—Randi Weingarten, president, AFT

“This is the book every teacher, parent, policymaker, and engaged citizen should read.”—Marcelo Suárez-Orozco, UCLA

Pub Jul 2020. 5.5 x 8.5 in. 448 pp.
University of Oklahoma Press
978-0-8061-6625-4 C/$29.95

Wrenched from the Land
Activists Inspired by Edward Abbey
Interviews with ML Lincoln edited by ML Lincoln and Diane Soucy Regasput

“These sixteen interviews, along with the foreword by Bill McKibben, cut a wide swath through the environmental movement in our nation. There’s a lot of anger, a lot of Abbey-esque humor, and every person interviewed shares their own way of engaging in the struggle.”—John Nichols, author of The Milagro Beanfield War

“...powerful, personal, and unique. It’s a must-read for anyone interested in the environmental movement.”—Lisa insulin, KUOW

Pub Apr 2020. 6 x 9 in. 414 pp.
University of New Mexico Press
978-0-8263-6135-6 C/$24.95

American Unemployment
Past, Present, and Future
Frank Stricker
American Unemployment is a history and introduction for everyone that takes aim at misinformation, willful deceptions, and popular myths to set the record straight.

University of Illinois Press
978-0-252-08502-4 P/$19.95

Thunder in the West
The Life and Legends of Billy the Kid
Richard W. Etulain
Even before he was shot and killed in 1881, Billy the Kid’s charisma and murderous career were generating stories that belied his brief life—and that only multiplied, growing to legendary proportions after his death at age twenty-one.

In Thunder in the West, Richard W. Etulain takes the true measure of Billy, the man and the legend, and presents the clearest picture yet of his life and his ever-shifting place and presence in the cultural landscape of the Old West.

Pub Jul 2020. 5.5 x 8.5 in. 448 pp.
University of Oklahoma Press
978-0-8061-6625-4 C/$29.95

A Hundred Little Pieces on the End of the World
John Rember
“Most books explaining why the world is about to end are not fun to read. They tend to earn a tension, self-righteous diatribe. John Rember has written a book that is not only entertaining and fun to

University of New Mexico Press
978-0-8263-6152-3 P/$19.95

What can you learn about your
And Other Moments of Science
Diane Sward Rapaport
edited by ML Lincoln and Edward Abbey

Interviews with ML Lincoln; Edward Abbey
Wrenched from the Land
Activists Inspired by Edward Abbey

American Unemployment
Past, Present, and Future
Frank Stricker

A Hundred Little Pieces on the End of the World
John Rember

What the Signs Say
Language, Gentrification, and Place-making in Brooklyn
Shonna Trinch and Edward Snajdr

Although we may not think we
notice them, storefronts and their signage are meaningful, and the impact they have on people is significant. What the Signs Say argues that the public language of storefronts is a key component to the creation of the place known as Brooklyn, New York. The unique features of the Old School
signage both mark and produce an
inclusive and open place. In contrast, the brevity and wordplay of New School signage signal the remaking of Brooklyn as distinctive and exclusive.

Vanderbilt University Press
978-0-8265-2276-8 P/$39.95

The Milagro Beanfield War
Richard W. Etulain

Richard W. Etulain offers a gripping, eye-opening account of the author’s years in the West, as he plays parts in the lives of people of all stripes. He writes with a scalpel. Buy it, read it. You'll be a better person.”—Tim Sandlin, author of Skipped Parts: A Novel and Honey Don't

Pub Mar 2020. 5.5 x 8.5 in. 312 pp.
University of New Mexico Press
978-0-8263-6135-6 C/$24.95

How the World Looks to a Bee
Frank Stricker

How can you learn about your world in just a moment? Ever wondered why the sky is blue? Can dogs read our facial expressions? Does glass and experts in their fields answer these questions and many more. How the World Looks to a Bee is the perfect armchair companion for curious people who want to know more about the science of everyday life but have only a moment to spare. Short tutorials and simple experiments invite readers to test the science for themselves.

Our Sixties

An Activist’s History

Paul Lauter

The conflicts of the Sixties fractured the nation and remain a central fault line in American culture. Paul Lauter chronicles his participation—as activist, organizer, and educator—in the “Movement” events of the period, including Mississippi Summer, the Selma-Montgomery march, draft-card burnings, the Pentagon demonstration, and the founding of The Feminist Press. Social history as well as personal account, Our Sixties speaks to those who recall that turbulent decade as well as those wishing to understand its impact on American politics and society today.

Surviving the Peace

The Struggle for Postwar Recovery in Bosnia-Herzegovina

Peter Lippman

Surviving the Peace is a monumental feat of ground-level reporting describing two decades of postwar life in Bosnia, specifically among those fighting for refugee rights of return. Unique in its breadth and profoundly humanitarian in its focus, Surviving the Peace situates digestible explanations of the region’s bewilderingly complex recent history among interviews, conversations, and tableaus from the lives of everyday Bosnians attempting to make sense of what passes for normal in a postwar society.

Bringing and Becoming Ute

The Story of an American Indian People

Sondra G. Jones

The first comprehensive history of the Utes and their adaptation to change across the vast environmental, cultural, international, and state divides where they have lived.

Echoes of Trauma and Shame in German Families

The Post–World War II Generations

Lisa Jakob

In recent years, growing numbers of Germans in their 40s and 50s have begun calling themselves Kriegsnerk, or Grandchildren of the War. The Kriegsner feel their own psychological struggles—depression, anxiety disorders, broken marriages, and career problems—are the direct consequences of unresolved war experiences passed down through their families. Lisa Jakob considers how the Kriegsner movement emerged at the nexus between public and familial silences about World War II, and critically discusses how this new collective identity is constructed and addressed.

Poems

Jennie Malboeuf

The mind and the body. The heavens and earth. God and animal. The speakers in God had a body consider how the image of a higher power is presented to her. Speckled with stars and peopled with creatures, these poems address a present, past, and possible future—from a troubled reckoning with belief to fon and promise still ahead.

Why Tweeting Beats T.V.

Alexandra Kitty

Explains how the internet has displaced print and television as the dominant medium of politics.

Eyes Everywhere

The reframing of African and African American art from artifacts and ritual objects to the purview of art museums and collectors.

God had a body

Poems

Jennie Malboeuf

The mind and the body. The heavens and earth. God and animal. The speakers in God had a body consider how the image of a higher power is presented to her. Speckled with stars and peopled with creatures, these poems address a present, past, and possible future—from a troubled reckoning with belief to fon and promise still ahead.

Echoes of Trauma and Shame in German Families

The Post–World War II Generations

Lisa Jakob

In recent years, growing numbers of Germans in their 40s and 50s have begun calling themselves Kriegsnerk, or Grandchildren of the War. The Kriegsner feel their own psychological struggles—depression, anxiety disorders, broken marriages, and career problems—are the direct consequences of unresolved war experiences passed down through their families. Lisa Jakob considers how the Kriegsner movement emerged at the nexus between public and familial silences about World War II, and critically discusses how this new collective identity is constructed and addressed.

God had a body

Poems

Jennie Malboeuf

The mind and the body. The heavens and earth. God and animal. The speakers in God had a body consider how the image of a higher power is presented to her. Speckled with stars and peopled with creatures, these poems address a present, past, and possible future—from a troubled reckoning with belief to fon and promise still ahead.

It Is Impossible to Remain Silent: Reflections on Fate and Memory in Buchenwald

Elie Wiesel

translated by Peggy Frankston

Discover Elie Wiesel and Jorge Semprun in conversation. These two men, whose destinies were parallel, had probably crossed paths—without ever meeting—as activist, organizer, and educator, respectively. Their conversations and many more.

Voices of the Holocaust

JOHN DAVIES, EDITOR

Now in English for the first time, the voices of the survivors. How did China and the West interact, and what have been the lasting legacies of this confrontation? Social history as well as personal account, Our Sixties speaks to those who recall that turbulent decade as well as those wishing to understand its impact on American politics and society today.

The New York Review of Books

Paul Lauter

An Activist’s History

Our Sixties

Paul Lauter

The conflicts of the Sixties fractured the nation and remain a central fault line in American culture. Paul Lauter chronicles his participation—as activist, organizer, and educator—in the “Movement” events of the period, including Mississippi Summer, the Selma-Montgomery march, draft-card burnings, the Pentagon demonstration, and the founding of The Feminist Press. Social history as well as personal account, Our Sixties speaks to those who recall that turbulent decade as well as those wishing to understand its impact on American politics and society today.

Surviving the Peace

The Struggle for Postwar Recovery in Bosnia-Herzegovina

Peter Lippman

Surviving the Peace is a monumental feat of ground-level reporting describing two decades of postwar life in Bosnia, specifically among those fighting for refugee rights of return. Unique in its breadth and profoundly humanitarian in its focus, Surviving the Peace situates digestible explanations of the region’s bewilderingly complex recent history among interviews, conversations, and tableaus from the lives of everyday Bosnians attempting to make sense of what passes for normal in a postwar society.

Bringing and Becoming Ute

The Story of an American Indian People

Sondra G. Jones

The first comprehensive history of the Utes and their adaptation to change across the vast environmental, cultural, international, and state divides where they have lived.

Echoes of Trauma and Shame in German Families

The Post–World War II Generations

Lisa Jakob

In recent years, growing numbers of Germans in their 40s and 50s have begun calling themselves Kriegsnerk, or Grandchildren of the War. The Kriegsner feel their own psychological struggles—depression, anxiety disorders, broken marriages, and career problems—are the direct consequences of unresolved war experiences passed down through their families. Lisa Jakob considers how the Kriegsner movement emerged at the nexus between public and familial silences about World War II, and critically discusses how this new collective identity is constructed and addressed.
Evasive Entrepreneurs and the Future of Governance
How Innovation Improves Economies and Governments
Adam Thierer

Innovators of all stripes—such as Airbnb and Uber—are increasingly using new technological capabilities to circumvent traditional regulatory systems or at least put pressure on public policymakers to reform laws and regulations that are outdated, inefficient, or illogical. This book explores why these disruptive innovators, or evasive entrepreneurs, are increasingly engaged in different forms of technological, political, and economic cooperation and how this makes the case that we should accept that activity as a way to foster innovation, economic growth, and accountable government.

Jimmy Carter and the Birth of the Marathon Media Campaign
Amber Rosser

The 1976 presidential election brought a transformative moment in US history, changing how candidates run for public office and how the news media cover these campaigns. Carter’s underdog victory signaled a transition from an older form of party politics focused on issues and platforms to a new brand of personality politics driven by the manufacture of a political image.

The Strange History of a Radical Idea
Bradley C. S. Watson, foreword by Charles R. Keeler

In Progressivism: The Strange History of a Radical Idea, Bradley C. S. Watson presents an intellectual history of American progressivism as a philosophical-political phenomenon, focusing on how and with what consequences the academic discipline of history came to accept and propagate it. Progressivism is novel because neither it is in thrall to progressivism nor does it consider progressivism as inevitable and inevitably doomed. Rather, the author is capable of criticizing progressivism at a fundamental level.

Cold War, Capital of the United States
Istanbul, the Geopolitical Capital of Europe, Russia, and Asia
Jean-François Thiriart

In Istanbul, the Geopolitical Capital of Europe, Russia, and Asia, Jean-François Thiriart, Alexander Jacob explore the geopolitical role of Istanbul, examining its status as a hub connecting Europe, Russia, and Asia. The authors discuss the historical and contemporary significance of Istanbul, including its role in the Cold War and its current status as a major international center.

The Sexual Love of Mothers for Their Children
The Piedre Complex
Herbert Richardson

This short monograph details the ideas of Jean-François Thiriart (1922–92) and his political theory concerning the post-Cold War world. Jean-François Thiriart argued that Istanbul would be the ideal capital of this world-embracing superstate.

In a Rugged Land
Ansel Adams, Dorothea Lange, and the Three Mormon Towns Collaboration, 1933–1954
James R. Surace

Tells the neglected story of Dorothea Lange and Ansel Adams’s fascinating attempt to document life in rural Utah in the 1950s.

TRAVEL WRITING

Places Lost and Found
Travel Essays from the Hudson Review
Edited by Ronald Kuey

“The consistent quality and variety of approaches—memoir, reportage, meditation, diary, criticism—make this anthology of travel writing fresh and compelling from beginning to end.”

—Greg Bottoms, author of The Colossal Apocalypse: Journeys in Outsider Art

A treasury of distinctive and compelling essays selected from six decades of the Hudson Review. From a description of the gardens of Kyoto and a portrait of Syria just before its civil war, these essays explore an array of places that are deeply layered with history and meaning.

Fiction and Poetry

The Strange History of a Radical Idea
Bradley C. S. Watson

In Progressivism: The Strange History of a Radical Idea, Bradley C. S. Watson presents an intellectual history of American progressivism as a philosophical-political phenomenon, focusing on how and with what consequences the academic discipline of history came to accept and propagate it. Progressivism is novel because neither it is in thrall to progressivism nor does it consider progressivism as inevitable and inevitably doomed. Rather, the author is capable of criticizing progressivism at a fundamental level.

Chicago Review Press

The Sexual Love of Mothers for Their Children
The Piedre Complex
Herbert Richardson

This short monograph details the ideas of Jean-François Thiriart (1922–92) and his political theory concerning the post-Cold War world. Jean-François Thiriart argued that Istanbul would be the ideal capital of this world-embracing superstate.

University of Notre Dame Press

In a Rugged Land
Ansel Adams, Dorothea Lange, and the Three Mormon Towns Collaboration, 1933–1954
James R. Surace

Tells the neglected story of Dorothea Lange and Ansel Adams’s fascinating attempt to document life in rural Utah in the 1950s.

University of New Mexico Press

The Sexual Love of Mothers for Their Children
The Piedre Complex
Herbert Richardson

This short monograph details the ideas of Jean-François Thiriart (1922–92) and his political theory concerning the post-Cold War world. Jean-François Thiriart argued that Istanbul would be the ideal capital of this world-embracing superstate.

University of Notre Dame Press

The Strange History of a Radical Idea
Bradley C. S. Watson

In Progressivism: The Strange History of a Radical Idea, Bradley C. S. Watson presents an intellectual history of American progressivism as a philosophical-political phenomenon, focusing on how and with what consequences the academic discipline of history came to accept and propagate it. Progressivism is novel because neither it is in thrall to progressivism nor does it consider progressivism as inevitable and inevitably doomed. Rather, the author is capable of criticizing progressivism at a fundamental level.
Rain in Our Hearts
Alpha Company in the Vietnam War
James Allen Logue and Gary D. Ford

Rain in Our Hearts takes readers into Alpha Company, 4/31, 196th LIB, America Division in 1969–1970. Jim Logue, a professional photographer, was drafted as an infantryman; he also carried a camera. Accompanying Logue’s photographs is the narrative written by Gary Ford. Each chapter focuses on the viewpoint and life of one member of Alpha Company. Taken together, Rain in Our Hearts offers readers a window into the words and sights of Alpha Company’s Vietnam War.

Texas Tech University Press 978-1-68283-067-3 C/$45.00

NEED THESE BOOKS IN A HURRY?
Find this listing at: www.nybooks.com/upress

When you visit The New York Review of Books on the web, you’ll find the entire content of New Books and Journals from University Press with links to the presses’ individual websites.